The George Institute conducts its operations with integrity, credibility, social responsibility and accountability. With the mission of improving the health of millions of people worldwide, The George Institute is committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all its business dealings and relationships, including ensuring modern slavery is not occurring in its own business or supply chains.

The George Institute is the reporting entity for the purposes of the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) (Modern Slavery Act), having met the reporting threshold in the reporting period.

OUR SUPPLY CHAINS

The George Institute engages with small and medium size suppliers for the majority of our local supplies and requirements (for example office supplies and equipment), whilst we rely on large multi-national suppliers for finance and technology infrastructure and services globally.

We have never been made aware of any activities in either our business or supply chain that would give concern or risk in relation to modern slavery. We consider the risk of modern slavery within our business and supply chains to be low.

OUR POLICIES

We have a number of internal policies to ensure our operations are conducted with integrity, credibility, social responsibility and accountability. These include:

➤ Modern Slavery Policy and Procedure

This Policy sets clear expectations of our zero-tolerance towards modern slavery and all staff are required to adhere to and implement effective systems and controls to ensure modern slavery is not taking place anywhere in our own business or in any of our supply chains. We have implemented a Standard Operating Procedure and updated our policies and procedures in the recruitment process and procurement of goods and services to combat modern slavery risk.

➤ Recruitment and Selection Policy & Procedure

We maintain a robust recruitment process in recruiting talented people to join our organisation, including conducting eligibility to work checks to safeguard against human trafficking or forced labour.

➤ Due Diligence

We have updated our due diligence process to check our suppliers' practices to ensure they have processes in place to combat modern slavery risk and adhere to the Modern Slavery Act.

➤ Whistleblower Policy

Our Whistleblowing Policy provides a platform for our employees and any external person to raise or report any concerns or suspicion of modern slavery in any parts of our business or supply chains in an anonymous manner without fear of reprisals.

CURRENT REPORTING PERIOD

With the enactment of the Modern Slavery Act, we have implemented the following measures:

1. We have updated our Modern Slavery Policy to include reference to our Whistleblower Policy. All new staff are required to read and understand our core policies, including our Code of Conduct and Modern Slavery Policy, to ensure they are aware of their legal, regulatory and compliance responsibilities. Our policies are readily accessible on our local intranet webpage.
2. We have published our Modern Slavery Statement 2019/2020 on our public-facing website.
3. We have prepared an e-learning course on modern slavery for our global staff.
4. All suppliers directly engaged are required to complete a due diligence questionnaire on modern slavery or have a Modern Slavery Statement.
5. We have prepared anti-modern slavery clauses to incorporate into supplier contracts (where relevant and appropriate).
6. We have a Whistleblower Policy and external hotline available for all staff and external parties.

EVALUATION PROCESS

We continue to monitor the effectiveness of the processes to address modern slavery risks at The George Institute. We do this by:

- Consulting and gathering annual feedback from:
 - Our Finance teams, on the conduct of due diligence checks on service providers using the Modern Slavery Checklist;
 - Our Legal team, on the implementation of anti-modern slavery clauses in our supply contracts; and
 - Our HR teams, on practices and checks to prevent modern salary risks in our recruitment process.
- Gathering feedback and obtaining annual attestation on implementation of the measures from division heads before presenting the annual Modern Slavery Statement to the Board of Directors for approval.

Based on these actions we will adapt and strengthen our actions to continually improve our response to modern slavery.

At the end of the reporting period (2020/2021), we did not identify any instances of modern slavery risk in our operations and our suppliers. We have also not received any complaints through our Whistleblower program on modern slavery risk.

CONSULTATION PROCESS

The George Institute as the holding company shares common policies and processes across its subsidiaries. We have our senior representation in our subsidiaries who join management and board meetings. We have engaged with all The George Institute group of companies in the development of our Modern Slavery Statement.
